

*Pierre Dumas, Engineer M.Sc.A.
Author of the "Répertoire des sites de ski du Québec"
Laurentian Ski Museum Member*

A civil engineer with a degree in hydraulics, Pierre Dumas has directed many multidisciplinary teams since the beginning of his career in 1967. He was the Director of Environment at the Société d'Énergie de la Baie James, President of the Association Québécoise de la Production d'Énergie Renouvelable and Commissioner for Biens culturels du Québec. He still has a practice as an expert in energy, hydraulics and environment. He has a passion for old maps, aerial photography and he has been skiing for over sixty years.

In 2013, while researching Sainte-Anne-des-Lacs, he met Fred d'Allmen, who owns around forty handwritten maps of the Laurentians drawn by his father, Paul, a topographer and cartographer, president of the Comité des pistes, section Laurentides of the l'Association canadienne de ski amateur. Working hard on his project, he published in March 2014, the directory of ski sites in the Laurentians (Répertoire des sites de ski des Laurentides), which is part of a permanent exhibition at the Laurentian Ski Museum.

Several of his publications on the history and the heritage are published on his website:
